During your first week in this MINI, you will rotate through Labor and Delivery. It will be extremely beneficial to you to become familiar with certain aspects of the delivery of nursing care to women and their families when they are in labor, PRIOR to attending clinical. Therefore, Chapter 14, Intrapartum Fetal Surveillance should be read prior to the first week of classes. Keep in mind and try to respond to the following questions while reading:

1) What is involved in a nursing assessment of a woman in labor?
2) How is the fetus assessed?
3) What is the difference between normal and abnormal labor?
4) What is the nurse’s role in supporting and advocating for a woman in labor?
5) Identify five nursing interventions to prevent fetal compromise.

The syllabus and other documents necessary for classroom and clinical will be available on Blackboard prior to the start of classes. Please bring the Intrapartal Unfolding Care Plan to the first day of Clinical.
