

Professional Organizations

- American Association of Sleep Technologists

<https://aastweb.org/membership/>

Memberships in the American Association of Sleep Technologists (AAST) provides sleep technologists and students with access to continuing education credits, professional development resources, networking opportunities, and exclusive member benefits. The AAST offers a student membership for those currently enrolled in training programs, with the option to transition to full professional memberships after graduation, helping members keep up with new information, skills, and changes in the field while maintaining professional credentials.

