

Campus Heating Update

Monday, October 3, 2022

The Campus Community,

As we approach cooler weather, I am providing a quick update of our campus-wide heating season preparation.

Our team of Engineers and technicians will begin to stage off our air conditioning equipment during the week of October 10th.

October weather can vary with unseasonably warm and cool days. As such, we look at the 10-day forecast and determine the best time to transition from cooling to heating. Once the HVAC system has transitioned to heating, there will not be any cooling until next spring.

The forecast for the next few days will be unseasonably cool and cloudy, but with temperatures reaching the 70's by Thursday and Friday. On Monday, October 10th, our teams will begin equipment transition and a week of busy preparation to be on schedule to supply heat to the campus by October 15th

Please do not hesitate to contact me with any questions.

Thank you.
