Proposed: Change in Course Description for SOC 3100: Introduction to Sociology

From: The social dimensions of human existence with stress on social structure and culture as governing factors in the lives of individuals with an introduction to basic concepts of sociology, major theoretical positions, and research methods. Meets the needs of students who want an introduction to the field as well as those who wish to undertake further study.

To: An introduction to the scientific study of society and social interactions. This course covers social theories, methods, culture, deviance, social inequalities (including race, class, and gender) and social institutions (such as the family, education, and religion). Students learn to analyze, evaluate, and critique social structures and to understand social change.

Rationale: This change in course description is a more accurate reflection of the material covered in the course.
