RE: Change in requirements for A.A. LIBERAL ARTS: Philosophy Concentration

The History, Philosophy and Political Science Department is proposing to change the liberal arts requirements for the philosophy concentration

Rationale for Change:

This change would make the philosophy concentration consistent with the other concentration where the degree requirements are 21 liberal arts requirements including the liberal arts seminar and 9 concentration credits of 3 philosophy courses which remain the same. In its current form, the philosophy concentration requires students to take philosophy courses for pathway requirements. This changes across the liberal arts concentration should improve enrolment through greater consistency and better advising. . Students will not be able to utilize liberal arts and concentration requirements for pathway requirements.
